DEFINITIVE COURSE RECORD

the main functions of business operations, leadership and management. Students will study modules that cover these functions and will reflect on their own practice through contextualised assessments and practice-based modules. As students' progress through the course, the focus of teaching and support will switch from introducing students to key concepts and the latest thinking in core management disciplines to the application of this knowledge in real business scenarios.

Course Aims

1. Demonstrate an advanced knowledge and critical understanding of a broad range of areas of business and management and the detailed relationships between these and their application to practice
2. Establish an excellent command of subject-specific skills as well as proficiency in generic skills and attributes
3. Apply a critical perspective on a view of business and management which is influenced by analysis of a wide range of learning sources, based on a proactive and independent approach to learning; challenging assumptions and questioning the status quo
4. Manage exceptional capacity to develop and apply their own perspectives to their studies, to deal with uncertainty and complexity, to explore alternative solutions, to demonstrate critical evaluation and to integrate theory and practice in a wide range of situations
5. Determine values and an ability to challenge assumptions, champion the values of global social responsibility while also appreciating the debates and potential contradictory views that this presents in complex business and management environments.
