This definitive record sets out the essential features and characteristics of the BA (Hons) Counselling course. The information provided is accurate for students entering level 6 in the 2016-17 academic year⁵.

Course Summary
The BA (Hons) level 6 Progression Route is intended to provide an articulated “2+1” degree progression route for both FdA Counselling graduates and entrants with other equivalent counselling qualifications. The BA (Hons) Level 6 progression route maintains and builds on the approach of the FdA in Counselling which requires a broad knowledge of the key approaches to counselling characterised by a relational focus derived from the humanistic tradition. The programme aims to broaden students’ experience and knowledge by exploring practice within a variety of contexts. It seeks to develop reflexive practitioners able to critically reflect on their approach to practice and to justify this both practically and theoretically. This culminates in the dissertation module which is intended to harness abstract theoretical understanding and practical experience, enabling students to distil this knowledge into their individual approach to relational counselling practice. In providing for more sustained writing and research the dissertation is also expected to serve as a springboard for further post-graduate study.

Course Aims

- To prepare students for accreditation by British Association of Counselling and Psychotherapy and supporting them in the process of gathering the evidence needed for their applications.

- To prepare students for possible further developments in State Regulation of the Counselling Profession which may require that counsellors are educated to Honours degree level.

- To enable students to meet the growing need for qualified counsellors in schools, charity organisations and medical settings

- To enable students to further develop their understanding and practice from an Integrative perspective

- To consolidate confidence to practice in a range of settings

- To foster understanding of the complexity of the range of issues which a client may present in the counselling room

- To provide the opportunity for student counsellors to deepen and broaden their understanding of counselling theory and practice

- To encourage students to extend their understanding of more specialist areas of counselling

- To provide a forum where counsellors from a variety of theoretical orientations and backgrounds are able to share knowledge and experience to their mutual advantage

- To promote the development of the student as a reflective, flexible, independent learner with transferable skills for employment in the counselling at work and freelance sector

- To develop key and graduate skills and specific competence in care skills for the workplace - i.e. both organizations, including schools and colleges, and freelance practice

- To prepare fully reflective graduate level practitioners able to critically evaluate learning in the workplace

- To provide graduates with appropriate knowledge and skills that are relevant to the regional counselling provision across service user groups and in Local Authority, NHS (both GP Practice and Hospital settings), and independent (private and voluntary) organisations, to meet local, regional, and national employment needs

- To prepare graduates to undertake counselling roles that require autonomy and assume responsibility - e.g. for appropriate disclosure or referral
University of Suffolk

DEFINITIVE COURSE RECORD

- To promote personal and employment competencies to enable the graduate to create and take opportunities for promotion and progression within the sector of workplace and freelance counselling, including Employee Assistance Programmes (EAP)

- To prepare graduates for the process of individual counsellor accreditation with the major Professional Body (BACP) as a pathway to employment
