Course Summary

Criminology at the University of Suffolk draws on Sociology, Psychology, Law, Social Policy and Philosophy in order to expose students to a range of classical and contemporary theoretical and empirical debates concerning crime and responses to criminal behaviour. Students are actively encouraged to develop good analytical and reasoning skills as they engage with academic literature and evaluate research and evidence.

Criminology students at will be able to critically engage with national and international dimensions of crime and criminal justice policy, and develop well informed views on contested public issues. There is a strong emphasis on challenging “common-sense” notions of criminal and deviant behaviours by critically examining academic research and making informed decisions based on available evidence. To this end, students will be introduced to a variety of research methods and ethical considerations, so that they can challenge and
