Course Summary

Psychology

Originating from Biological and Philosophical disciplines contemporary psychology is an empirical science that seeks to comprehend how and why humans and non-humans experience and behave the way that they do. Students have the opportunity to attain a holistic approach to psychology as they are provided with a foundation of the main psychology approaches identified by the BPS as being ‘core’, as well as the importance of understanding the complex interaction between these approaches. The emphasis is on theoretical underpinnings with progression to practical applications, as students’ development through the course sees them engage with the different theories at work in everyday life whilst critically evaluating the contributions made by these multiple perspective approaches. This focus on applied knowledge is reflected in our emphasis on students developing as empirical researchers through their course, as they come to understand the relationship between theory and empirical data. Our modules not only provide an underpinning in research methods and data analysis, but also provide students invaluable practical application by designing, conducting, analysing and reporting data, and eventually becoming independent researchers in their own right. Through studying psychology students will not only acquire a scientific understanding of the mind, brain, behaviour and experience, but will attain knowledge allowing them to recognise and critically evaluate theory, research and the implications of a scientific study.

Criminology

Criminology at the University of Suffolk draws on Sociology, Psychology, Law, Social Policy and Philosophy in order to expose students to a range of classical and contemporary theoretical and empirical debates concerning crime and responses to criminal behaviour. Students are actively encouraged to develop good analytical and reasoning skills as they engage with academic literature and evaluate research and evidence.

Criminology students will be able to critically engage with national and international dimensions of crime and criminal justice policy, and develop well informed views on contested public issues. There is a strong emphasis on challenging “common-sense” notions of criminal and deviant behaviours by critically examining academic research and making informed decisions based on available evidence. To this end, students will be introduced to a variety of research methods and ethical considerations, so that they can challenge and understand the limitations and ambiguities of empirical research, whilst assessing its value. This will provide an excellent theoretical and practical platform for the completion of a third year dissertation in an area of personal or career interest.

Course Aims

- To develop students’ knowledge, critical understanding and skills in psychology and criminology
- To cultivate a questioning and critical approach to the understanding of human behaviour and society.
- To encourage cognitive development and autonomous learning.
- To develop subject specific, cognitive and key transferable skills of value in employment, further study and personal development.
- To provide opportunities that facilitate widening participation by local/non-standard entrants to study psychology and criminology

Course Learning Outcomes

The following statements define what students graduating from the BSc (Hons) Psychology and Criminology course will have been judged to have demonstrated in order to achieve the award. These statements, known as learning outcomes, have been formally approved as aligned with the generic qualification descriptor for level 4/5/6 awards as set out by the UK Quality Assurance Agency (QAA).⁶

Knowledge and understanding

1. Demonstrate a depth of knowledge and critical understanding of a range of approaches, theories, concepts, research findings and applications in the relevant field of study
2. Understand the scientific underpinnings of psychology as a discipline
3. Recognise the inherent variability and diversity of psychological functioning

⁶ As set out in the QAA Frameworks for Higher Education Qualifications of UK Degree-Awarding Bodies \(2014\)

DEFINITIVE COURSE RECORD

4. Demonstrate a good knowledge and critical understanding of a range of influences on psychological functioning, and how they are conceptualised across biological, cognitive, developmental, and social psychology and individual differences
5. Demonstrate knowledge of a range of research paradigms, research methods and measurement techniques, including statistical analysis
6. Critically analyse a range of key concepts and theoretical approaches in criminology
7. Critically evaluate the values, practices and processes that underpin criminal justice
8. Critically evaluate the relationship between political ideology and social problems within criminology

Intellectual skills

9. Show good critical thinking skills and a notable ability to critically evaluate and interpret a range of information, theories and evidence
10. Demonstrate an appreciation of the uncertainty, ambiguity and limits of knowledge
11. Reason scientifically and demonstrate the relationship between theory and evidence
12. Adopt multiple perspectives
13. Detect meaningful patterns in behaviour and experience
14. Pose and operationalise research questions
15. Critically analyse competing interpretations of crime and responses to it
16. Identify and critique the philosophical, political and ethical values that inform criminology
17. Identify and critique a range of criminological research and evidence

Practical skills

18. Manage their own learning effectively, and recognise, find and make good use of academic literature
19. Undertake and critically evaluate a research project
20. Demonstrate competence in research skills through practical activities
21. Initiate, design, conduct and report an empirically-based research project under appropriate supervision
22. Exhibit awareness of ethical principles and approval procedures and demonstrate these
23. Demonstrate a high level of evaluative and analytical skills through summarising and analysing arguments, reports, documents and other written and verbal data
24. Autonomous learning using appropriate primary and secondary sources

25. Undertake and critically evaluate a research project

Key skills

26. Communicate relevant subject knowledge and evidence accurately and reliably with structured and coherent arguments

27. Show development of key transferable skills

28. Clearly communicate ideas and research findings by written, oral and visual means

Interpret and use numerical, statistical and other forms of data

Awards

On successful completion of the course, students will be awarded a BSc (Hons) Psychology and Criminology. Students who leave the course early may be eligible for a DipHE Psychology and Criminology on successful completion of 240 credits including all mandatory modules at levels 4 and 5.

Course Delivery

The course is delivered at Ipswich. Students studying full-time on the BSc (Hons) Psychology and Criminology are likely to have approximately 12 hours per week (288 hours per year) contact hours for level 4, 12 hours per week (288 hours per year) contact hours for level 5 and 8.5 hours per week (204 hours per year) contact hours for level 6. The contact hours will be a mix of lectures, seminars, practical activities, tutorials and workshops. Students will normally be expected to undertake 38 hours of independent study in an average week, but should be prepared for this to vary based on assignment deadlines and class exercises.

Course Assessment

A variety of assessments will be used on the course to enable students to experience and adapt to different assessment styles. The assessment methods used will be appropriate to assess each module's intended learning outcomes. Assessment on the course overall will be approximately 80% coursework (including essays, reports, presentations, group work, reflective learning journals and research projects) and 20% examinations.
