This definitive record sets out the essential features and characteristics of the FdA Creative Arts for Health and Wellbeing course. The information provided is accurate for students entering level 4 in the 2022-23 academic year<sup>5</sup>.

Course Summary

This two-year, full-time programme aims to develop the student as a creative practitioner who wants to take a professional approach to the provision of projects, workshops and other opportunities to individuals and communities whose health and wellbeing will benefit from such provision.

While it is anticipated that some applicants are likely to have an arts background, the programme is not confined to this: for example, students may be working with Pilates, yoga or other physical activities or disciplines.

Others may be coming from a health/social care setting, but with an interest in the therapeutic benefits of engagement with a creative activity.

Thus the expectation of the programme is not that you are a 'great artist,' but have an interest in a form in which personal expression can be developed to an individual's or group's benefit and an enthusiasm for originating/developing creative ideas, developing as a planner, facilitator and reflective practitioner.

Course Aims

1. To enable the students to critically identify the contribution of creative and expressive activities to supporting individuals', emotional, social and developmental potential.
2. To encourage development of specific and generic skills/ transferable skills of value in employment, further study and personal and professional development.
3. To provide the students with the opportunity to explore methods and uses of research relevant and appropriate to career arenas.
4. To provide opportunities for reflection and development of personal and professional skills whilst working within the creative and wellbeing sectors.
5. To provide opportunities for development of creative practices.
6. To provide students with a recognised higher education qualification which provides the opportunity to access an honours degree and / or a professional qualification.
