Course Summary

The University of Suffolk provides students with a firm grounding in the subject of law and the contexts in which law and legal institutions function. This course allows students to develop a wide range of skills, combining their core subject knowledge in law with an equal amount of deep insight into criminology and criminal justice. Students will have the opportunity to develop skills in empirical research, including quantitative data. Students will be introduced to a variety of research methods and ethical considerations, so that they can challenge and understand the limitations and ambiguities of empirical research, whilst assessing its value. It is expected that students will be able to produce a final year research dissertation with a stronger application of empirical legal knowledge in the context of criminal justice. As this course also covers the foundations of legal knowledge subjects, those students intending to embark on careers in legal practice will be exempted from the academic stage of legal training as determined by the Bar Standards Board and the Solicitor’s Regulation Authority, or gain exemptions from aspects of the CILEX programme for specialist lawyers.

Before enrolment the list of optional modules being offered in that academic year will be made available to students.

7 Modules are designated as either mandatory (M), requisite (R) or optional (O). For definitions, see the Framework and Regulations for Undergraduate Awards.
Awards
On successful completion of the course, students will be awarded a BSc (Hons) Criminology and Law. Students who leave the course early may be eligible for a DipHE Criminology and Law on successful completion of 240 credits including all mandatory modules at levels 4 and 5.

Course Delivery
The course is delivered at Ipswich. Students studying full-time on BSc (Hons) Criminology and Law are likely to have approximately 288 contact hours for level 4, 288 contact hours for level 5 and 264 contact hours for level 6. The contact hours will be a mix of lectures, seminars, and practical activities. Students will normally be expected to undertake 25 hours of independent study in an average week, but should be prepared for this to vary based on assignment deadlines and class exercises.

Course Assessment
A variety of assessments will be used on the course to enable students to experience and adapt to different assessment styles. The assessment methods used will be appropriate to assess each module’s intended learning outcomes. Assessment on the course overall will be approximately 60% coursework (including essays, reports, presentations, group work, assessed moots, reflective evaluations and research projects) and 40% examinations.

Course Team
The academic staff delivering this course are drawn from a team that includes teaching specialists and current practitioners. All staff are qualified in their subjects with their own specialist knowledge to contribute.
