DEFINITIVE COURSE RECORD

Course Summary

The BA (Hons) English course offers an interdisciplinary approach to the study of literature, linguistics, and creative writing. Students engage with contemporary subjects in literary studies, such as young adult fiction, autobiography, and adaptation. The course allows students to create bespoke personal learning pathways in creative writing and linguistics. The creative writing pathway is founded on the power of the spoken and written word to transform individual lives and perspectives. Students are involved in the practice of reading, researching and writing, and have the opportunity to create a portfolio of published work, including poems, short stories, flash fiction, and novellas. In the linguistics pathway students engage in cutting-edge research in linguistics, exploring topics such as language acquisition and disorders, and variation in spoken language. The pathway allows students to practise key skills in sociolinguistics, conversation analysis, psycholinguistics and literary linguistics. The course is delivered by highly qualified lecturers and practitioners. As well as academic and creative skills, students gain valuable work experience and professional recognition through established course partnerships with local schools, arts organisations, publishers, and regional theatres, and have the opportunity to enter exclusive writing competitions. Students develop core critical and creative capacities that are essential to succeed in a diverse and rapidly changing global environment.

Course Aims

The following aims describe what we aim to provide on the course and what a graduate of the BA (Hons) English at the University of Suffolk should know and be able to do.

The aims of the BA (Hons) English are to:

- Inspire enthusiasm for English and an appreciation of its past and continuing social, cultural, political and economic importance
- Provide an intellectually stimulating experience of learning and studying, and opportunities for interdisciplinary and contextual approaches
- Encourage students to reflect critically upon the acts of reading and writing and on the history of textual production and reception
- Enable students to adopt a wide range of reading strategies, applied to their own work and the work of others
- Support students in the development of their own writing, and develop their confidence through a critical, technical and creative understanding of the subject/craft/art and of their own creative process
- Foster openness of mind, conceptual sophistication in argument and the ability to engage critically with a range of cultural forms and values
- Provide a basis for further study in English or related subjects and for the teaching of English at all levels
- Develop a range of subject-specific and generic skills of value in graduate employment, including high-order critical, analytic and research skills, and advanced competence in oral and written communication.
