development opportunity for those who already work in industry who may not have had the opportunity to gain a qualification or further their education.

The foundation degree in fashion and textiles encourages students to be innovative and creative whilst gaining skills and experience of a wide variety of processes relevant to fashion and textiles for both working within the industries or as a freelance practitioner. The first year of the course lays the foundation of skills in fashion design, pattern construction, garment manufacture, printed and constructed textiles, drawing and digital applications. The second year of the course allows the student to develop research skills which, along with continued visual communication studies, provide the basis for the major project module which gives students the opportunity to choose a specialist fashion or textiles pathway, developing both creativity and technical expertise.

Work experience and live projects are a key part of the course and students are expected to take an active part in these over both years of the course where possible. Students have access to specialist equipment, tutors, and visiting lecturers (where feasible), and have a dedicated HE Arts Study Room. One to one support is available through regular module tutorials and personal tutorials. Students may have the opportunity to visit galleries, exhibitions and trade shows.

On completion of the foundation degree in fashion and textiles students have the opportunity to progress on to the one-year BA (Hons) Creative Arts Practice progression route at University of Suffolk at East Coast College (Great Yarmouth), to gain a full BA (Hons) degree or to seek employment or self-employment within the fashion and textiles industries.

Course Aims

- Provide a programme appropriate to degree level study in fashion and textiles.
- Equip students with the knowledge, understanding and skills required for success in current or future employment/self-employment in fashion, textiles, and related areas.
- Provide a preparation for postgraduate study in fashion, textiles, and related subject areas.
- Equip students to meet changing circumstances, whether they arise from a shift in employment, promotion to management roles or changes in professional practice or technological advances.

Course Delivery

The course is delivered at the University of Suffolk at East Coast College (Great Yarmouth). Students studying full-time on Foundation Degree in Fashion and Textiles are likely to have approximately 9 - 12 contact hours in a typical week, for level 4 and 9 – 12 contact hours, per week for level 5. The contact hours will be a mix of Lecture, demonstration, workshop, practical, directed and self-directed study. The course uses a blended learning model which gives students inclusivity and accessibility to tutors and module resources through the OLE where practically possible. Students will also be required to participate in 70 hours of work-based learning per level of study. Students will normally be expected to undertake 26 hours of independent study in an average week, but should be prepared for this to vary based on assignment deadlines and class exercises.

Course Assessment

A variety of assessments will be used on the course to enable students to experience and adapt to different assessment styles. The assessment methods used will be appropriate to assess each module's intended learning outcomes. Assessment on the course overall will be 100% coursework, including practical and digital outcomes, Sketchbooks, Research, Essays, Presentations, and Portfolios.
