This course allows students to develop a wider range of skills and subject knowledge alongside law by taking modules in sociology on relevant and important aspects of the real world that are complex and challenging. In addition to engaging in legal reasoning, students also learn how to analyse the impact of law in society. Students will be introduced to a variety of research methods and ethical considerations, so that they can challenge and understand the limitations and ambiguities of empirical research, whilst assessing its value. Students will have the opportunity to develop skills in legal and empirical social science research, including quantitative skills, through to a final year dissertation. Those intending to embark on careers in legal practice will be exempted from the academic stage of legal training as determined by the Bar Standards Board and the Solicitor’s

Course Delivery, Assessment and COVID-19

Our guiding principles for delivery during the 2020-21 academic year will be based around a rich blended learning environment, which will include some online delivery of lectures as well as face to face delivery of seminars, lab work and tutorials as applicable. Where possible assessment will be undertaken as planned and where this is not possible, e.g. on-site examinations, an equivalent assessment will be made available to students. We do not intend to have a fully online academic year for any of our students.

Our campus will be safe and welcoming for new and returning students, but we will observe – as all universities must – the government guidance in place at the time and so the delivery and assessment statements below are under continuous review as circumstances change.

Course Delivery

The course is delivered at Ipswich. Students studying full-time on LLB (Hons) Law with Sociology are likely to have approximately 288 contact hours for level 4, 288 contact hours for level 5 and 264 contact hours for level 6. The contact hours will be a mix of lectures, seminars, and practical activities. Students will normally be expected to undertake 25 hours of independent study in an average week, but should be prepared for this to vary based on assignment deadlines and class exercises.

Course Assessment

A variety of assessments will be used on the course to enable students to experience and adapt to different assessment styles. The assessment methods used will be appropriate to assess each module’s intended learning outcomes. Assessment on the course overall will be approximately 70% coursework (including essays, reports, presentations, group work, assessed moots, reflective evaluations and research projects) and 30% examinations.
